

Rhode Island

State Plan	CS4RI (a partnership between the Governor's office and the Department of Education) created a state plan for computer science education implementation. One of the goals of the plan is to broaden participation among populations that are underrepresented in computer science.
Yes
Standards	The state adopted K-12 computer science standards in 2018. Standards within each grade band address concepts of equity, such as bias, accessible technology, and inclusivity. Additionally, standards can be met without computing devices or with limited hardware access, making implementation possible for all schools.

Funding	H 5151A (FY 2020), H 7200A (FY 2019), H 5175 (FY 2018), and H 7454 (FY 2017) allocated $210K annually for computer science professional development. Grants focus on broadening participation, and priority is given to Title I-eligible schools. The Department received a $2.5M federal grant to support the creation of high school computer science pathways that incorporate work-based learning.
Yes
Certification	Teachers with existing licensure can obtain an endorsement through academic coursework from an approved provider.
Yes
Preservice	The state has not yet established guidelines or approved programs at institutions of higher education to offer computer science to preservice teachers.
No
CS Supervisor	The Department of Education has a core team advancing the goals of CS4RI, including the Digital Learning Specialist, CS4RI High School Grant Project Manager, and CS4RI Work-Based Learning Specialist.
Yes
All HS Offer	The state does not yet require that all secondary schools offer computer science. However, the CS4RI initiative and the Governor's office set a goal for all students to have access to computer science courses by the end of 2017.
Other
Grad Credit	Computer science can count as a mathematics or science credit for graduation.
Yes
IHE Admission	The state does not yet allow computer science to count as a core admission requirement at institutions of higher education.
